Support Your Local Aviation Organizations. Aviation Explorer Post 747 and the San Fernando Valley 99s women pilots will be hosting a pancake breakfast fundraiser on Saturday, January 22, 2011, from 8:30 a.m. until noon. The event will take place on the grassy area in front of the Airport Administration Office. For a $5 donation you will enjoy a delicious breakfast that includes pancakes, sausage, fruit salad, orange juice, coffee and hot chocolate and the breakfast coincides with the Young Eagles event that day. So please join these great aviation organizations for a fun day at the airport that will feature good food, free airplane rides for kids between 8 and 17, raffle prizes and much more. The proceeds will benefit the 99s career scholarship fund and help pay for flight lessons for the Aviation Explorers. If you have any questions or would like to donate supplies or money to help support this worthy event, please call Ruth Logan at 818-364-1224.

Airport Association. The Whiteman Airport Association's annual Holiday party was held on Thursday, December 9th, at Rocky's was very well attended and enjoyed by all. I had the pleasure of meeting many of you for the first time and felt very welcomed at my first Association Holiday party, so Than You! Please join at their regularly scheduled meetings, held on the 3rd Thursday of each month at Rocky's Restaurant, and join the Airport Association for $10 a year in dues. The next meeting will be held on January 20, 2011.

Aviation Meetings & Seminars. For FAA meeting information, please see the FAA's website at <http://faasafety.gov>. Meetings are typically held in the Civil Air Patrol trailer or the Pilots Lounge. For information on aviation seminars regularly offered by Richard Mend, please visit his website at <http://www.mendaviation.com>.

Quote of the Month

The air is the most mysterious, the most exciting, the most challenging of all the elements. We leave the planet, we leave the sea, we leave the earth. The air is no longer of this world. . .

TSA to AOPA: Security program won't target small airports

By AOPA ePublishing staff - Dec. 7, 2010

The Transportation Security Administration (TSA) has confirmed that a new proposal for general aviation security would not target small airports; instead, the proposal would focus on aircraft

During the American Association of Airport Executives Aviation Security Summit Dec. 6 in Arlington, Va., TSA Assistant Administrator John Sammon said that a supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking working its way through the TSA would reflect the input from AOPA and other GA stakeholders shared in industry working group meetings held last year.

The TSA is working on a new GA security proposal, after deciding to go back to the drawing board on its proposed Large Aircraft Security Program in June 2009 thanks to pressure from Congress and more than 8,000 public comments from the GA community. The original proposal would have applied commercial air carrier security measures to GA aircraft weighing more than 12,500 pounds, regardless of the type of operation. AOPA maintained that it was burdensome and costly, calling for crewmember criminal record checks, watch list matching of passenger manifests, biennial third party audits of each aircraft operator, and new airport security requirements.

AOPA will review the supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking as soon as it is released, although no deadline has been established. The association expects the new proposal to increase the weight threshold and do away with calls for third party audits, watch list matching, federal air marshals on board the aircraft, and airport security program requirements. Also, AOPA believes the proposal will establish "trusted pilots" who have final authority over items and people on the aircraft
